(4) Adoption of the
method of training:

After one has developed a firm faith, one should choose a Dharma door (do enlightenment) for one's training. One should never change it, and when one's choice has been made, either for repetition of the Bud-
-dha's name, or for holding a mantra, or for Ch'an training, one should stick to it
for ever without back-
-sliding and regret.
If today the method
does not prove successful, next year

it shall be continued;
and if in the present
lifetime it does not prove successful, it shall be continued in the next life.
The old master Kuei-Shun said: 'If one practices it in such succeeding reincarna-
-tion, the Buddha-sta-ge can be expected.'
There are some people who are irresolute in their decisions; today, after hearing a learned man praise the repe-
-dition of Buddha's name, they decide to repent it for a couple of days, and to mor-
-row, after hearing
another learned man
